Saudi Aramco

Q1: Solid results

Top-line increased ~16% q-o-q to ~SAR467bn, mainly as a result of the 30% jump in oil prices and strong refining margins. Oil prices were up driven by strengthening energy demand, low crude and refined product inventories globally, and the impact of geopolitical events. Lower-than-expected production costs offset the impact of the top-line miss, resulting in a largely in-line operating profit. Overall, net income (before minority) was reported at SAR148bn (record quarterly earnings since its IPO in 2019), slightly above our estimate of SAR140bn (consensus: SAR144bn). The company generated FCF of US$30.6bn in Q1 2022 which is well above the dividends of US$18.8bn. The company also approved capitalizing US$4bn of retained earnings to support the distribution of bonus shares to shareholders, in the amount of one share for every 10 shares held. The gearing ratio has also improved to 8% from 14% the last quarter. Hydrocarbon production remained mostly flat at 13mmboed (13.2 in Q4 2021) while Bloomberg reported oil production at 10.2mmbpd (10.1mmbpd in Q4 2021). Aramco expects capital expenditures to be between SAR 150.0 to 187.5bn (US$40.0 to 50.0bn) for 2022, compared to SAR 119.6bn (US$31.9bn) in 2021. We believe we are still far away from the peak of oil demand globally, which could be upwards of 110mmbpd by 2030 by which Aramco could increase its market share to 10%, to 11mmbpd. Our target price for the stock remains unchanged at SAR42/share (Neutral rating)

Valuation. For 2022, we expect the company to maintain DPS at SAR1.4, although it can potentially/gradually increase to SAR1.7 per share. This is because we believe the company is driven by longer-term goals and is likely to exhibit resilience and stability. To capture this potential growth, we use DCF valuation method and keep our TP unchanged at SAR42/sh., implying a Neutral rating. Our TP implies a Neutral rating based on the current market price.

Risks. Key downside risk to our valuation is a surge in interest rates which looks unlikely at this point. Other downside risk factors to our estimates are lower-than-expected dividends, eo-political tensions, delay in recovery in oil prices, and further slowdown in the global economy.

Explanation of Al Rajhi Capital's rating system

Al Rajhi Capital uses a three-tier rating system based on absolute upside or downside potential for all stocks under its coverage except financial stocks and those few other companies not compliant with Islamic Shariah law:

"Overweight": Our target price is more than 10% above the current share price, and we expect the share price to reach the target on a 12 month time horizon.

"Neutral": We expect the share price to settle at a level between 10% below the current share price and 10% above the current share price on a 12 month time horizon.

"Underweight": Our target price is more than 10% below the current share price, and we expect the share price to reach the target on a 12 month time horizon.

"Target price": We estimate target value per share for every stock we cover. This is normally based on widely accepted methods appropriate to the stock or sector under consideration, e.g. DCF (discounted cash flow) or SoTP (sum of the parts) analysis.

Please note that the achievement of any price target may be impeded by general market and economic trends and other external factors, or if a company's profits or operating performance exceed or fall short of our expectations.
